

Widowhood 101 (Widowhood Series Book 2)

I don't claim to have all the answers, but the answers I have found are mine and they may help someone along their journey. It is the toughest journey I have ever faced in my life and although the grief is easing now it is still there and probably will be for the rest of my life. I still love and miss my husband and I always will. Widowhood 101 is the story of the first 13 months of my personal journey through widowhood. This is the story of how I coped during those first months and what worked for me, it may not work for everyone but may give ideas of how to cope and what to look for in life. It is honest and emotional and at times confronting. It is a journey that many of us take and no one wants to begin and it is a journey that although it gets easier is life long. For me that journey began in December 2010 and I have written my story to share this with other Widows and Widowers and the wider community in an effort to gain further understanding for those of us undergoing this journey. I am writing further books to add to the series over time and have already completed Widowhood 102 which is a compilation of my diary entries during that first twelve months and Widowhood 103 which is a brief book on Grief and Tears written with a friend who has also grieved. My current project is the Journey to Widowhood and it will tie the series together and will be available in October 2012. Thank you for purchasing this book and I hope that you gain something from its contents.
