

Just Chillin

Just Chillin puts a humorous twist on the real life drug epidemic that peaked in the early to mid-80s. Far from a fantasy gangster story, the characters don't drive expensive cars or drink Cristal. They drink malt liquor by the forty ounce, as they step with their Addidas to the nearest subway station. They drink, get high, and maybe pull a scam or two. A couple have a real good time, but there are those that aren't so lucky. Queens, New York, 1983, four teenagers learned the difference between right and wrong, the hard way. Fredeo, a below average high school junior, loves basketball and chasing girls. His best friend, B.J.--a truant fifteen-year-old--is towing the line between being a casual drug user and an all out crackhead. Their friend, Antonio, is a drop out with a drug problem. Last but not least, there's Freedom, a righteous Black brother by day, and a small time hustler by night.
