

Dont Forget Your Booster Bra (Dont Forget... Book 2)

Sometimes, finding love the second time around turns out to be more of a comedy than a romance... Susie has a milestone birthday coming up. Shes older and definitely wiser now and when it comes to love she discovers that just like football, its a game of two halves. The first half, Dont Forget Your Miracle Pants, was a catalogue of romantic errors. Finding The One had turned out to be an own goal. But shes got some new tactics in her game plan for the second half. Still on her team are her best pal Cougar Kim, her daughter Holly and her down-to-earth mum who pokes fun at Susies romantic blunders. But the love match heats up when Susie tangles with tents, tiramisu and Scotlands top male stripper. Find out the full-time result in the next episode of Dont Forget... REVIEWS: I found the story to be hilarious. Susie is turning 50 and she decides to spend the whole year doing things she wants, to from finding a full time job to getting in shape and maybe even finding love along the way, from the problem she has online when trying to buy miracle pants to boost her sagging bottom to some funny first dates, and some great holidays with her friends and her mom. I had to keep reading to the end. I cant wait for more books by this author. A great heart-warming funny story, kept me entertained the whole time, very relatable, would definitely recommend to a friend. It just may take years to sort yourself out. Take your time...dont settle. Friends and family are the corner stone to keep it together and strive for better. This is the first story I have read that takes place in Scotland. I laughed trying to figure some slang and situations. Even with different phrases, we are all the same when it comes to life. No matter where we live, people have the same worries and problems. We want the same things. A cute and fun book.

I thoroughly enjoyed this excursion into the world of the panther. Susie has a delightfully light, humane and funny writing style. I recommend this book as a great holiday read.
