Not illustrated. 1902 Excerpt: ...goes to the barn for the common use. To conclude then, the secret of the attraction in Loma-land is, that it affords the opportunity for workers of all classes to work on the true lines of impersonality, and thus insures them joy and success. H. T. Edge VIII As if a heaven-dweller Had showered his brightest thought. As if ai interstellar A crown to thee had brought. IX Behind thee the blue ocean Thy figurc cuts in two. Above thee a commotion Of clouds and rosy hue; X Around thee bushes gleaming With diamonds and gold. Thou sittest all a beaming Upon the monuments old. XI A watcher of an ancient race. Their genius and their guard. With innocence upon thy face. With rapture of a bard. actly what we sow we must reap, and just as with the flowers so with us, what we plant we must also gather, and that is our Karma; whatever you do causes something to follow. Karma is Gods great Law of Order and Harmonv that is always working; when we do good and think good it always brings us joy, and when we are naughty and think unkindly it brings us unhappiness, and that is what we call our Karma. Marjory sat silent for a minute or two. But Alice, she said at last slowly, Aunt Miriam is a good woman and Mvrtle is a darling. Whv did uncle die and make them so miserable, and have to leave their big house and go and live in a tiny cottage, when they are good? I cannot understand. Aunt Jessie says it was Gods will, and you sav it was aunties fault. It does not seem kind of God to take him when they were all so happy; but how could it be aunties fault, she did not want him to die? Did you want your finger to burn when you insisted on dipping it in the hot jam pan this morning to taste the jam?

returned Alice with a smile. You ...
